

Gabriel Faustino Santos

The Invention of the Mandado de segurança

Protecting rights and (re)building the state in the Vargas Era (Brazil 1934-1945)

biblioteca Giornale di Storia costituzionale

Gabriel Faustino Santos

The Invention of the Mandado de segurança

Protecting rights and (re)building the state in the Vargas Era (Brazil 1934-1945)

eum

Biblioteca del Giornale di Storia costituzionale

Collana diretta da Luigi Lacchè, Roberto Martucci, Luca Scuccimarra

15

In copertina: Dal diario del Brasile S. Paulo Città n. 3, 1954, olio su tela di Emilio Vedova, gentilmente concessa dai Musei Civici di Palazzo Buonaccorsi, Macerata.

Issn 2421-2865

Isbn 978-88-6056-873-1 (print)

Isbn 978-88-6056-874-8 (PDF)

Prima edizione: dicembre 2023

©2023 eum edizioni università di macerata

Palazzo Ciccolini, via XX settembre, 5 – 62100 Macerata

info.ceum@unimc.it

<http://eum.unimc.it>

Il volume è pubblicato su fondi assegnati dal Ministero dei Beni Culturali e dal Prin 2020 prot. 2020XLT4BL - “The law of healthcare. Disciplining, organizing and safeguarding public health in Italy in the contemporary period” , coordinato dal Prof. Luigi Lacchè

Il presente volume è stato sottoposto a peer review secondo i criteri di scientificità previsti dal Regolamento delle eum (art. 3) e dal Protocollo UPI (Coordinamento delle University Press Italiane).

Indice

11 Introduction

Part I

27 The mandado de segurança between innovation and tradition: the discourse of formation of the new guarantee

Chapter 1

The background and the experiments of the First Republic (1889-1930): defining ideas and exploring possible alternatives to the enforcement of rights

- 29 1.1. The history before the mandado de segurança: setting our starting point
- 30 1.2. Rethinking old experiments: habeas corpus and possessory injunctions as the safest bets
- 64 1.3. The special action of Law no. 221 Art. 13, 1894: the story of a planned failure

Chapter 2

The recent origins of the mandado de segurança: the drafts in the political-parliamentary arena

- 77 2.1. The mandado de segurança in Parliament: the history of its appearance
- 78 2.2. The proto-initiatives of Alberto Torres (1914) and Edmundo Muniz Barreto (1922)
- 84 2.3. The Constitutional Amendment of 1926 and the promise of a new legal remedy
- 112 2.4. The Gudesteu Pires project and the Afrânio de Mello Franco substitute: discussing the form and nature of the new institute

- 121 2.5. The 1934 Constitution and the creation of the mandado de segurança
140 2.6. Law no. 191, 1936 and the regulation of the mandado de segurança: rewriting the new remedy

Chapter 3

Appropriation of foreign institutes in the formation of the mandado de segurança: a Brazilian reading of the Anglo-American writs and the Mexican juicio de amparo

- 157 3.1. Innovation through the lens of foreign law
164 3.2. The foreign writs and the Brazilian legal thinking: the first echoes of a strategic use
169 3.3. Edmundo Muniz Barreto's proposal and the 1926 Constitutional Amendment: foreign law caught between promises and real intentions
176 3.4. Gudesteu Pires and the remedy “identical to the writ of mandamus in the United States and to Mexico's recurso de amparo”
183 3.5. The foreign writs in the creation and regulation of the mandado de segurança
191 3.6. Foreign institutes in legal thought (I): risks of abuse and limits
196 3.7. Foreign institutes in legal thought (II): finding the nature and establishing the interpretation of the mandado de segurança

Chapter 4

The remote origins of the mandado de segurança: a strong state and a conditional control of the public administration

- 203 4.1. Tradition in Brazilian public law: identifying key elements
208 4.2. Administrative jurisdiction and the legacy of the Empire: law caught between ruptures and continuities
225 4.3. The construction of the space of administrative authority (and arbitrariness): the insistence on the privileges of the Administration
256 4.4. The “(purely) political questions”: the same old (new) space of authority
265 4.5. The mandado de segurança as a product of tradition: the imposed limit of “purely political questions”

Part II

The mandado de segurança in transition: legal thought and the transformation of the institute

Chapter 5

The mandado de segurança in brazilian legal thinking: the role of the legal scholarship in the conformation of the new remedy

- 281 5.1. Transition as adscriptive time and the active force of legal scholarship 284 5.2. The construction of a doctrine of the mandado de segurança: solving some central issues
299 5.3. The mandado de segurança in the Estado Novo (1937-1945): de-constitutionalization and “processualization”

Chapter 6

The image of the mandado de segurança in the Vargas era: uses, impressions and expectations in the pages of «Correio da Manhã»

- 321 6.1. Brazilian press and the mandado de segurança: the case of «Correio da Manhã»
326 6.2. “The first mandado de segurança”: the constitutional remedy as an object of social interest
337 6.3. Exercise of police power
371 6.4. The political world and the mandado de segurança: the institute as an instrument of power
384 6.5. The mandado de segurança in the state bureaucracy: the civil service issue

Conclusions

- 399 1. The history of the mandado de segurança as a key to Brazilian legal thought: fundamental rights versus state authoritarianism 404 2. The fall of the Estado Novo and the re-constitutionalization of the mandado de segurança: “to be continued”

Bibliography

- 411 1. Primary sources
428 2. Secondary sources

The Invention of the Mandado de segurança

Protecting rights and (re)building the state in the Vargas Era (Brazil 1934-1945)

The invention of the mandado de segurança in 1934 can be interpreted as the end of a long story or the beginning of a new one. As the result of years of debate, the new institute was perceived as an important constitutional innovation of the time that effectively answered an old promise regarding the need to enforce fundamental rights. But, despite the widespread narrative that surrounded the rise of the mandado de segurança, it also represented the final product of a long tradition of theories and practices of Brazilian public law. In fact, it is a valuable key in understanding the (re)emergence of legal principles and concepts that, at their core, favored the public interest. Therefore, in a period of a significant political, social, economic, and legal transition, the mandado de segurança is a perfect image of the paradox of the Vargas Era, when protecting rights seemed just as important as (re)building the state.

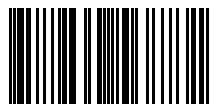

eum edizioni università di macerata

Gabriel Faustino Santos is a postdoc researcher with a Ph.D. in Legal History from the Università degli studi di Macerata. He has focused on Brazil's institutional and constitutional history, mainly on the period of the First Republic and the Vargas Era.

ISSN 2421-2865

ISBN 978-88-6056-873-1

9 788860 568731
€ 18,00

In copertina: Dal diario del Brasile S. Paulo Città n. 3, 1954, olio su tela di Emilio Vedova, gentilmente concessa dai Musei Civici di Palazzo Buonaccorsi, Macerata.